

ABSTRACT

An optical gas sensor for determining a gas, in particular in air, having a radiation source, a detector and a sensitive
5 layer in the beam path of the radiation source. The sensitive layer contains at least one oligomer or polymer having at least one side chain, the side chain having at least one basic or acidic functional group.